A serious-minded high school student's search for facts and fallacies relative to the alleged incompatibility of the Bible and modern science forms the backdrop for a sparkling motion picture drama to be shown at Houghton Lake Bible Church on April 1, 1960, according to information received from The Northland South Crusade, sponsor of the showing. Entitled "Monkey Business," the fifty-minute color film traces the adventures of a teen-ager named Jim and his impetuous friend Toby. "Face it," Toby says, "monkeys are an awful lot like people." To which Jim counters, "I believe God created monkeys, not people, just as he created people to be people." From these viewpoints springs a story that swings the gamut from the

Chamber Seeks Past Due Dues

The Crawford County Chamber of Commerce, seeking to fatten its very lean bank balance in order to continue with their promotion work, have set up a committee to collect past due dues from delinquent members.

John Latuszek has been named chairman of the committee and calls will be made on delinquent members in the very near future by paid-up members of the Chamber.

Secretary-manager of the Chamber Robert Hayes stated that the spring roundup of past due dues to the organization was getting to be an annual thing. He urged any and all members whose dues are in arrears to send in a check to the chamber today to save the committee members as many calls as possible.

18th Decennial U.S. Census In April

Ten years of population change in Michigan will be measured by the 18th Decennial Census of the United States to be conducted in April 1960 by the Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce. The new statistics will bring forward the information last collected in the 1950 Census.

The census count in 1960 in the area that now is the State of Michigan was a scant 551 persons. In 1950 figures assembled by the Census Bureau showed the State ranked seventh nationally in population with 6,371,766 inhabitants. Except for two decades, from 1880 to 1910 Michigan has grown at a more rapid pace than the Nation as a whole. The gain of 2,028,715 in the 60-year period ended in 1960 brought the population to 2,420,982 or 11 times the population in 1840 when it first was counted as a State.

The gain between 1900 and 1950 was 3,950,784. The largest numerical increase and rate of growth occurred in the 50 years from the decade from 1920 to 1930 when an increase of 1,773,913 or 32.6 percent was recorded. The numerical increase of 1,115,660 between 1940 and 1950 represented a gain of 21.2 percent over the 1940 population of 5,256,166.

Michigan was organized as a Territory in 1805 from the northeastern part of Indiana Territory and comprised the greater part of the area of the present State, including the Lower Peninsula and the eastern end of the Upper Peninsula, and a small part of the present State of Indiana. In 1816 its area was reduced by the annexation to Indiana Territory, upon its formation as a State, of a narrow strip at the southern limit of Michigan Territory. In 1818, when Illinois was admitted as a State, all of Illinois Territory north of the State of Illinois was transferred to Michigan Territory.

This transferred area comprised almost all of the present State of Wisconsin, part of Minnesota, and the western part of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan. At the same time a section of unorganized territory, formerly part of Indiana Territory, was annexed by the Territory of Michigan. The annexation comprised the middle portion of the Upper Peninsula and a very small part of Wisconsin not formerly included. In 1834 Michigan Territory was further enlarged by the annexation of that part of Missouri Territory now comprising all of Iowa, the remainder of Minnesota, and previously included, and parts of North and South Dakota.

With the organization of Wisconsin Territory and the legal cession of a small area to Ohio in 1850, Michigan Territory assumed the limits of the present State. Michigan was admitted to the Union as the twenty-sixth State in 1837.

The State has a land area of 57,022 square miles. In 1950 there was an average of 111.7 inhabitants per square mile as compared with an average of 92.2 in 1940. Among the States, Michigan ranked twenty-first in land area.

The 1950 urban population of Michigan was 2,420,982, or 70.7 percent of the population of the State. This population was living in the 700 urban places in the State and in other territory included in the urban places of the Detroit-Ann Arbor-Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo, Lansing Muskegon, Pontiac and Saginaw areas and in the Michigan part of the South Bend, Indiana, area.

The rural population of Michigan numbered 1,000,000 persons, or 29.3 percent of the total population of the State. Of the rural population, 248,713 persons, or 13.3 percent, were living in the 1,117 unincorporated places and 751,287 persons were living in the 1,000 to 2,500 inhabitants.

The 83 counties in Michigan ranged in size from Keweenaw with a population of 2,918 to Wayne with a population of 1,925,869. Between 1940 and 1950 the counties increased in population as against 79 in the previous decade. Eleven of the 15 counties which lost population, including the 4 which had lost in the previous decade, were located in the Upper Peninsula. The most rapid rate of increase between 1940 and 1950 was experienced in Macomb County, which increased at the rate of 71.8 percent. As in the previous decade, the largest numerical increase was recorded in Wayne County. The gain of 419,612 for Wayne County accounted for more than one-third of the population increase of the State. Michigan had 486 places incorporated as cities or villages and 48 unincorporated places of 1,000 inhabitants or more. Of the 4,421,154 persons living in the incorporated places, 2,217,747 were living in the 347 places of fewer than 2,500 inhabitants. The 37 unincorporated places of 1,000 to 2,500 inhabitants accounted for 55.52 of the 114,042 inhabitants of the unincorporated places. The incorporated places ranged in size from Lake Ann Village with a population of 99 to Detroit city with a population of 1,494,568.

There are 1,494,568 urbanized areas entirely within Michigan in 1950 and one urbanized area partially within the State. Of the 3,586,514 persons in urbanized areas in Michigan, 2,554,087 were living in the 347 cities and 1,032,427 in the urban fringe areas. 702,177 persons living in 47 incorporated places and 329,250 living in unincorporated places.

Local Cancer Rate Lower

(Special to the Avalanche)

New York, Mar. 25 — With cancer claiming more and more lives in the United States with the rate of increase in the incidence of the disease over the local incidence of the disease.

Added interest centers on it at this time, also because of the fact that April has been designated "Cancer Month" by the President.

The ravages of the disease locally are evidenced by the latest Government report, released through the National Office of Vital Statistics.

It places the number of deaths of cancer patients in 1958 at 158,900, a cause of death in 1958, the period covered by the survey. Not included are deaths locally of non-residents.

The loss represented a rate of 140 deaths per 100,000 population, which was lower than that recorded for most parts of the United States, where it averaged 147 per 100,000.

It was lower, also, than the rate in the East North Central States, 158 per 100,000.

The growth of the cancer problem to its present high proportions is noted in a recent study by a Senate subcommittee.

Its report shows that in 1900 cancer was only seventh in importance as a cause of death. It was preceded by heart disease, tuberculosis, pneumonia, enteritis, nephritis and accidents.

Cancer Drive Starts Friday

New York — The most massive education and fund drive ever mounted in behalf of the fight against cancer will be led by Edgar A. Forio, Senior Vice President of The Coca-Cola Company.

This was announced today by Rutherford L. Ellis, Board Chairman of the American Cancer Society, which this year for the first time will conduct its annual April Crusade in each of the fifty states.

The Society also announced at the same time that the American public had made its 1959 Crusade the most successful yet. "For the first time, in the history of the voluntary fight against cancer," Mr. Ellis said, "Americans contributed more than $30,000,000 to the annual Crusade. The final audited figure is $30,372,944. Adding legacies and bequests, for the year, the Society raised a total of $34,610,123."

Accepting the voluntary post, Mr. Forio said that he felt that "the fight against man's cruel enemy — cancer — is one of the great challenges of the 1960's. Never before has the prospect for the eventual control of cancer been at today's level. Yet during the sixties the corporation cannot afford to ignore the cancer epidemic. It is estimated that nearly 3,000,000 Americans will die of the disease."

"The educational and fund-raising Crusade," he said, "which supports the American Cancer Society's three-point program of research, education and service, seems to me to provide for Americans an ideal means of combating cancer. It is a privilege, I feel, to be given the opportunity to head up this decade's first Crusade."

"It is my hope that public response this year will establish an unprecedented pattern of growth for the sixties so that the Society's programs can be bolstered as never before. Toward that goal I pledge my fullest energies," he added.

Heading the April Cancer Crusade in Crawford County is the Grayling Kiwanis Club while Stephen Sink, son of the Stanley Sink, is being sponsored by the Grayling Post 196 American Legion.

Issuing Stability Good-by

The Saturday Evening Post recently ran a full-page editorial entitled "We Can Stop Inflation if We Have the Courage to Try." In the course of its discussion, it said this: "...inflation is inevitable unless there is patience and restraint on the part of the public. If every slight increase in prices is to mean a strike-enforced demand for higher wages, we might as well kiss stability good-by."

In substantiation, it quotes a striking statement made by L. Roberts Driver, a leading statistician and expert. Says Mr. Driver: "If the pay of all employed persons in the United States had been raised by forty cents an hour, as the pay of the steelworkers was raised, the costs of goods and services in the country would rise $45,800,000,000 a year, or $270 for every one of our 10 million people." To quote the Post again, "Leaving at the effect on our precarious competitive position vis-a-vis foreign producers, even a fiscal ignoramus can see the effect of such an addition to our already top-heavy costs on the value of the dollar."

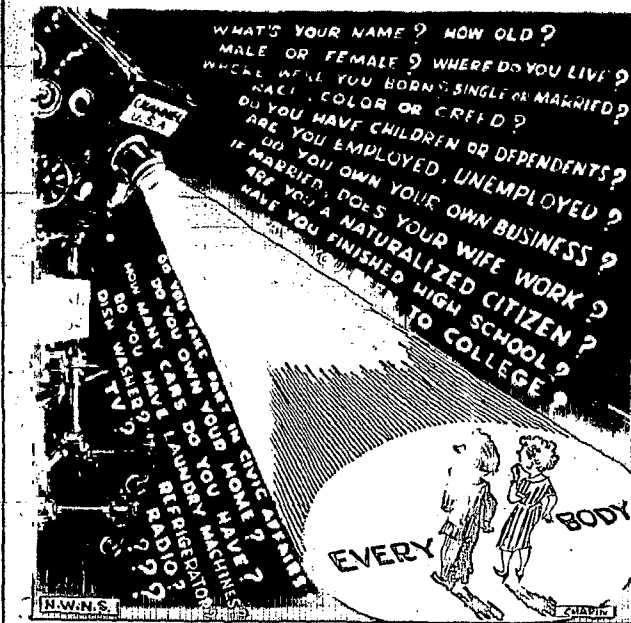

The number of dollars that labor or any other group gets is not the big thing. What really counts is what those dollars will buy. And the surest way to further degrade the dollar's buying power is through wage increases not accompanied by increases in productivity.

The Villain In The Piece

Concern increases over the competition of imported goods with American products. In instance after instance, foreign makers are offering excellent articles at lower prices.

The usual explanation for this is high American wage costs. And that, of course, is a very big factor indeed. But it is not the only factor. As John Chamberlain writes in National Review, obsolescent machinery plays a major role.

NEW QUIZ SHOW, 1960 CENSUS

To quote him, "...obsolescent machinery is the main devil in many industries which are trying to compete with European and Asiatic manufacturers. Obsolescence is practically guaranteed by the idiotic tax laws which keep U. S. companies from plowing money back into a constant renovation of plant. Almost every other industrial power in the world makes it easy taxwise for manufacturers to invest in the latest productive equipment. In England there are fast write-offs; in Germany corporations are relieved of the profits tax on money they reinvest in plant. And nowhere else in the world are investors penalized by the high capital gains tax which they have to pay in America."

Our pride in American technology and industrial efficiency seems to have led us to believe that world leadership is almost automatically assured. It isn't—as the swelling floods of successful imports show. And our crazy-quilt tax system, which almost forces mechanical obsolescence and makes new investment about as difficult as possible, is largely the villain in the piece.

INTERESTING ITEMS OF NEWS GATHERED FROM THE FILES OF THE AVALANCHE OF 23 YEARS AGO

April 1, 1937

After five years as bookkeeper and salesman and seven years service as local manager and salesman, Don Reynolds has resigned from the Michigan Public Service Co. to take over the sales management of Sorenson Furniture store. His resignation was sent in some time ago to take effect April 1st.

Grayling was lively Wednesday when delegations of supervisors, poor commissioners and county officials of forty counties of Michigan met in Grayling to discuss the merits and demerits of legislative bills that are up for enactment for the control of welfare matters of the state. These bills would place welfare authority in the hands of county commissions and take them out of centralized state and governmental agencies. Excessive costs of operations of the present set-up of welfare agencies came in for a lot of condemnation. The meeting was marked by serious and deliberate consideration of the grave problems that confronted the people of Michigan in the matter of welfare. It was estimated that less than 50% of the money appropriated for welfare purposes reached the families for whom it was intended, due to the extravagant method of administration.

Mrs. Harold Sheldon and children of Otsego visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Smith in Maple Forest last week. Mr. Sheldon came for Easter and accompanied Mrs. Sheldon and children home. Other children of the Smith family who were home to spend Easter with them were Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Smith of near Gladwin, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Smith of Frederic, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stephan and son Jimmie of down river.

Leland Marshall was home from Detroit over Easter. Ray Owen of Detroit was a guest over Easter Sunday of his sister, Mrs. H. C. Schmidt.

Carl Gierke of Saginaw was an Easter guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Gierke, Jensen Ziebell and family, Joe Glander and family and Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Smith.

Grayling was greeted by a snow-fall yesterday morning and it is snowing again today. However, what snow fell yesterday melted before night and the temperature is so mild today it probably will not stay long.

Weather traditions have been all wrong this spring. First the groundhog retired in favor of six more weeks of winter weather, which we didn't get, and now when March came in like a lamb it failed to be stamped by lion-like weather and went out as it came in—like a lamb.

Several friends of Mrs. F. J. McClain dropped in to wish her a happy birthday evening. Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Crowley in the morning, and the guests surprised her by appearing in comic dress. Pinchle and bridge were enjoyed and a potluck lunch served. The guest of honor was the recipient of a nice gift.

A surprise birthday party for Richard Bieski, six years old, was given on March 24th at his home. About twelve little guests were present and Pat Tiffin was the winner of the prize.

Mrs. N. P. Olson, Mrs. Nikolai Schjotz and Ernest Olson returned Monday from a several weeks' sojourn in Florida. They spent most of the time at Fort Lauderdale, which is one of the popular Florida winter resorts. Mrs. Schjotz is a resident of the city.

ots says that the weather was beautiful, balmy like our June weather.

Reggie Sheehy received an injury to his left foot Monday afternoon while at work at the flooring mill. A lumber truck accidentally ran over his foot breaking the small toe and bruising the others.

Lake survey and sounding projects at CCC Camp AuSable, east of here, have been completed for this season, the report of Project Superintendent Emerson E. Frye states. Enrollees working under Foreman Joe Godfrey sounded and surveyed several small lakes in the AuSable State Forest, the total aggregating 1,250 acres. Tee Lake, covering 476 acres, was largest in size, and Chub Lake was deepest, 75 feet. The crew traveled from 20 to 30 miles from camp to each of its projects.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Madsen and son Howard, of Detroit, visited relatives here over the weekend.

A luncheon was given by Mrs. C. R. Keyport for eight guests at her home Tuesday. Water lilies reflected from a mirror made a very attractive table decoration. Mrs. Esbern Hanson held the high score for bridge that followed the luncheon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Martin and son Edward, spent the weekend in St. Ignace visiting relatives. Easter Sunday Mr. Martin's mother celebrated her 80th birthday, 20 members of the family being present for a family dinner. Mr. and Mrs. George H. Maw of Flint, who visited Mrs. P. W. Martin on her birthday, were visitors at the J. L. Martin home on Monday.

46 YEARS AGO April 2, 1914

A luncheon and smoker attended by 200 Grayling men was held at the Opera House Thursday night to discuss the building of the new hotel.

In the nominating of township candidates to be voted for at the spring election there are three tickets in the field in Grayling township. M. A. Bates heads the Republican for supervisor, Walmer Jorgensen, the Democrat, and Frank DeCrown, the National Progressive. In Frederic township, Charles Craven heads the Republican ticket and Floyd A. Goshorn, Socialist; in South Branch, Ernest P. Richardson the Republican and Hugo Schreiber, Jr., the Democrat; Beaver Creek township, John Hanna, Republican, John E. Nichols the Citizens; Maple Forest, William S. Chalker, Republican (one ticket in field); Lewis, James E. Keller, Peoples Party (one ticket in field).

Mrs. Edna McCullough is assisting Mrs. J. E. Crowley in the millinery store as Miss Minna Kraus has resigned.

Frank Dreese, who was the purchaser of the M. Brenner bankrupt stock, has leased the office and residence building of Dr. Merriman for a term of years and will remodel the place and open it up for a store.

Waldemar Hanson entertained the young people who participated in the Danish play at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hanson Sunday evening. At six o'clock a delicious luncheon was served, everyone finding their places at the table according to the theatrical names. Mr. Andrew Nelson, in his jolly manner, spoke the sentiments of the people present. "The Picture Man" has proof of the jolly crowd.

Al Cramer and Fred Aebli, so far as we have heard, are the championship fishermen of the season. One day last week they speared through the ice at School Section lake, a steelhead pike weighing sixteen pounds and six ounces. It was forty inches long and seven inches thick.

Local Drug Store Urging Get Out The Vote

Complete registration and voting information for this area is posted in Larry McNamara's, Mac's Rexall Drug Store.

Voters in this locality will find information there concerning who must register, where and when they must register and where they can vote. Mr. McNamara is providing this information as part of a national public service program by Rexall druggists.

"We have put up this bulletin board," McNamara said, "because we want to make it easy for those who can vote to know how to go about it. People move, they become newly-eligible, or they want to exercise their voting privilege for the first time and often don't know the mechanics of voting."
"In the 1956 general election,
only six out of every ten eligible voters in the nation actually voted — hard to believe in a democracy such as ours. Let's hope that percentage does not apply to our town
this year."

Rexall pharmacists all over the country are posting voting information in their drug stores with the cooperation and backing of leading civic and political organizations. The Republican and Democratic parties, the American Legion, the League of Women Voters, and the American Heritage Foundation are all lending their support in this campaign by telling voters they can get the information at their nearby Rexall drug store.
Rexall drug stores are particularly suited to this purpose, since there are over 10,000 of them, one within shopping distance of almost everyone.

Mr. McNamara stressed that he is providing a non-partisan service. "The information in our drug store," he said, "concerns how a citizen can exercise his voting privilege, not whom he votes for."

Burrows Market Holds Opening

Burrows Market, which opened the market just a few years ago has again opened its doors to the public. Just recently after the L. G. A., the Incorporated Grocers' Association, the store rearranged its stock layout, moving more room for the public, and in a way to better the flow of traffic. The meat department has moved to the opposite side of the store, closer to the entrance room where deer hams for years stored their supplies of meat, and where stock shelves have been relocated on the right side of the building, leaving a wide aisle from the back of the store to the front, thus enabling the shopper to pick up his or her needs without checking out. The new casual tile flooring throughout the building, and sets of new paint. New lighting has been installed, and a new vegetable and dairy case. Burrows Market is still open and open, this week, with the public in mind. "We extend a cordial invitation to the public to come in and see the store."
